

BICOM® therapy for school and exam stress

Description

Every child and adolescent reacts individually to stress. Symptoms can be physical and/or psychological. The most common physical stress symptoms include:

- Headache
- Stomach ache
- Nausea
- Diarrhoea
- Sleep disturbances
- Eating disorders (loss of appetite or overeating)

The most common psychological stress symptoms include:

- Anxiety
- Nervousness
- Irritability
- Aggressiveness
- Dejection

These symptoms are often accompanied by a conspicuousness in behaviour. The child or adolescent withdraws from his or her social environment, displays reduced self-confidence, sleeps poorly, has nightmares, and then his or her school performance deteriorates due to concentration and attention disorders.

In this case, we can support both the students and the parents with the BICOM® bioresonance method.

The treatment is more effective after possible therapeutic blockages have been removed and the elimination organs have been stabilized.

Therapy (create own sequence with the following programs):

- Clear deep blockages (3017.0)

- Shock treatment, acute (3093.0)
- Shock therapy (241.4)
- Harmonize, compensate excess therapy (127.1)
